I'm Dr Apiradee Jariyarangsiroge, with a background spanning Bachelor's and Master's degrees in TEFL, Education and Human Resources Management. After teaching at the Language Institute, I transitioned to Human Resources roles, including positions at Thai Airways and Chulalongkorn University. Returning to academia in 2021, I now teach Educational Administration at Chulalongkorn University's Faculty of Education. My research focuses on Vocational Education and Human Resources Management, including projects examining Academic Management Strategies and Innovative Workforces in Vocational Education. Recently, I led a research project funded by OTEPC, focusing on Human Resources Management practices for Instructors in Vocational Education Institutions. My working journey reflects my dedication to merging theory and practice in education and HR management.
