About EdUHK

The Education University of Hong Kong (EdUHK) is a government-funded tertiary institution dedicated to the advancement of teaching and learning through diverse academic and research programmes on teacher education and complementary disciplines, including social sciences and humanities. We nurture educators and social leaders who are intellectually active, socially caring, and globally aware to become agents of change in the communities they serve. We place great emphasis on research capability with the aim of contributing to the advancement of knowledge, scholarship and innovation. EdUHK is committed to creating a sustainable impact on social progress and human betterment and defining the education landscape for not only Hong Kong, but also the Asia Pacific region.

Making a difference

Our vision is to further enhance our role as a leading university in the Asia Pacific region and beyond, with a focus on educational research, development and innovation. We will continue to make an impact locally, regionally and internationally through high quality research and scholarship. Adopting an Education-plus approach, our primary mission is to lead educational innovation, and to promote and support the strategic development of teacher education and disciplines complementary to education by preparing outstanding and morally responsible educators and professionals while supporting their lifelong learning.

Our proud heritage

EdUHK, formerly The Hong Kong Institute of Education (HKIEd), is a young and vibrant university with a rich heritage dating back to the 19th century.

Faculty of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences (FLASS)

The Faculty of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences (FLASS) offers a wide range of undergraduate, postgraduate and professional development programmes. With its strong academic and research team, the Faculty offers our students a tailor-made curriculum that will prepare students for their future success.

The Faculty adopts a student-centred learning approach that reflects its overarching educational philosophy of “Nurturing Caring Leaders with a Global Vision”. Through its programmes, the Faculty’s distinguished team of teaching and research staff broadens students’ horizons by introducing them to a wide spectrum of knowledge that is complementary to studies in pedagogy and education. The Faculty’s well-integrated curriculum not only nurtures students’ potential and helps them to become professional and caring teachers, but also equips them with the necessary academic knowledge and skills for other career opportunities.

The Faculty boasts a multitude of academics who specialise in Asian and policy studies, creative arts, culture, health and physical education, mathematics, information technology (including big data and artificial intelligence), science, environmental studies, and social sciences. Besides being committed to teaching, the academic staff working in the Faculty also work passionately on their research.

Building on its strong research and academic links with other prestigious institutions, the Faculty aims to expand its reach and coverage both academically and geographically.

“I worked as an intern at Phoenix TV while I was an MPPM student. The internship was a stepping stone for me to enter the media industry. Without it, it would be impossible for me to be a journalist. The MPPM programme taught me critical thinking and problem-solving skills, and the ability of looking at an issue from a global perspective. These skills have not only been useful for understanding social issues, but also for analysing cases in the business world. The skills have helped my career a lot. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the department of Asian and Policy Studies for their care and support, and for providing us with endless opportunities.”

Graduate School (GS)

Established in 2010, the Graduate School (GS) is responsible for managing the University's Research Postgraduate programmes (Doctor of Philosophy and Master of Philosophy), as well as the cross-faculty Doctor of Education and Master of Education programmes. The School serves as an academic platform for professional doctorates and taught master's programmes with the aim of promoting maximum synergy between the higher degree programmes and ensuring that they meet international standards. The School works closely with the various academic units to develop an active research environment on campus and aims to provide first-class research training for research postgraduate students.

"Living in Hong Kong means growing academically and professionally day by day. Immersing yourself in the rich and dynamic Hong Kong culture (with its pineapple buns, dumplings, hikes and skyscrapers) might be one of the best decisions you ever make...Trust me!"

EdUHK takes a leadership role in promoting the strategic development of innovation for the education and community in Hong Kong. Our scholars continue to explore various possibilities to develop new technologies and knowledge in order to create impact on the society.

Educational technology and social innovations are two keywords of social and economic reforms in the next decade. The successful transfer of EdUHK research into application in education and social innovation has elevated the University's presence in education innovations and enabled the University to engage a broader community with its inventions and innovations in applications.

Knowledge transfer is always about partnership. At EdUHK, we are committed to making our education and community better with our ideas. We nurture entrepreneurship among EdUHK students and graduates to create the EdUHK social venture community. We wish that the transfer of EdUHK knowledge to partners can benefit more students, educators and the industries in the future, contributing to human betterment.

Throughout the years, the University has developed an extensive network of partnerships and collaborations with government agencies, non-governmental organisations and universities across the globe. This includes exchange opportunities, joint degree programmes, consultancy projects, and research and knowledge transfer projects. These collaborations have mutual benefits for EdUHK and its partners in fostering cross-cultural and multicultural understanding, putting each side's expertise to good use, and creating opportunities for knowledge creation, sharing and application.

Student accommodation and hall life

Our student residential halls, situated among lush and wooded hills, are convenient, secure and comfortable. There are four on-campus student halls – Northcote Hall, Grantham Hall, Robert Black Hall, and the Jockey Club Student Quarters – providing about 2,200 residential places for full-time undergraduate and postgraduate students of University Grants Committee-funded programmes and exchange students.

Hall residents can supplement their formal classroom learning through a variety of stimulating educational activities, including inspirational talks from experts in various fields, overseas experiential learning tours, and life skills workshops, all of which are held regularly.

"The student hostel has become my second home. There are lots of interesting activities as well as warm-hearted residents in the halls. Though residents from different cultural backgrounds with different personalities are gathered here, we still have many things in common, one of them is that we care for each other. The student hostel is a nice place to learn to be an independent, caring and adaptable person. It's a great place for personal growth."
