

38 EdUHK scholars named world's top 2% scientists by Stanford University

- Local dailies reported that 38 EdUHK scholars were named among the top 2% most-cited scientists in the world, in the latest annual rankings published by Stanford University.
  - Among them were new President Professor John Lee Chi-Kin, who assumed the position last month; Vice President (Research and Development) Professor Chetwyn Chan Che-hin; Advisor and Adjunct Chair Professor (Geography & Environmental Science) Professor Jim Chi-yung, Advisor (Environmental Science) Professor Wong Ming-hung; and Professor Rudolf Wu Shiu-sun, who has invented 'artificial mussels', an effective tool that can monitor radioactive contamination in waters around the world.
  - Notably, Professor Jim Chi-yung ranked first out of over 30,000 scholars in the field of forestry, representing the high citation rate and significant impact of his research output.
  - Congratulating the EdUHK team, President Professor Lee said that the University has made great strides in research in education and various emerging disciplines, as illustrated by its remarkable achievements over the years. To further extend our research impact in Hong Kong and beyond, two new Academies, namely the Academy for Educational Development and Innovation and the Academy for Applied Policy Studies and Education, have been established to better promote interdisciplinary research with greater synergy.
